Altrusa Club Joins In Grants-In-Aid Project

During October, the Altrusa Club of Torrance, Iris Ekstrand, president, joins the 500 other Altrusa clubs in eight countries contributing to Altrusa International's annual Grants-in-Aid fund drive.

Since the beginning of Grants-in-Aid in 1945, Altrusa, through members' donations, has awarded $237,552 in emergency gift grants of $250 to $750. These grants have helped 379 graduate women of Asia and Latin America, enrolled in courses in North American universities, over the financial hump toward their educational goal. The allocation for 1961-1962, as determined by last year's fund-raising drive, is $28,787, according to Rose Fenn, publicity chairman for the Torrance club.

Far too many students come to study in North American universities only to find their everyday expenses — such as food and rent — too high, and often have to return home without the valuable degree they and their countries so vitally need.

Therefore, from the inception of Altrusa Grants-in-Aid, money has been given to these international students as a supplementary sum.

In 1954, the Grants-in-Aid project earned for Altrusa International, the George Washington Honor Medal, awarded by the Freedoms Foundation.

Altrusa, with a current membership of 16,000, is the oldest of the classified women's service clubs, and the first organization for business and professional women, founded April 11, 1917.
